Petition for Meade Statue.

The surviving members of the Philadelphia Brigade of Pennsylvania regiments that fought during the Civil War have adopted a resolution looking to the placing in the National Statuary Hall in the capitol at Washington of a statue to the late General George Gordon Meade, a Pennsylvanian who commanded the army that defeated Lee at Gettysburg and gave the death blow to the rebellion, and have had addressed to Governor Stuart a letter requesting him to recommend that steps be taken to have such a memorial to Meade placed in the famous hall.

The resolution says that inasmuch as the State of Virginia has recently placed a statue of her foremost soldier (winning General Lee) in the hall, it is altogether fitting and proper that Pennsylvania should also be represented in the nation's capitol by a statue of her most distinguished soldier of the Civil War.

Milling Stone Bursts.

What might have proven a fatal accident for Reuben Julius, of Littlestown, occurred last Friday, when one of the large milling stones in the Julius Bros. plant at that place burst. Mr. Julius, who was engaged in making chop, had left the small milling room to look after the fire and was just entering the boiler room when the stone burst with a terrific report. One large piece weighing about 300 pounds, completely demolished the one side of the building, glanced from a woodworking machine and finally landed on a circular saw frame, wrecking that. Another large piece was thrown fully twenty feet from the scene of the accident, while smaller pieces were thrown through the windows and out into the alley. Mr. Julius had not been out of the room over two minutes before the stone burst.

DEMOCRATIC DAY--SEPT. 10

THE CAMPAIGN WILL OPEN THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Senator Webster Grim Starts on a Tour of the States—Some Political Pointers.

Saturday, September 10, is going to be Democratic Day all over Pennsylvania, for on that day the Democrats of the State will open the campaign in various counties, and from reports there is going to be an outpouring of Democrats such as has not been seen in this State for a long time. The State committee has been busy arranging for meetings to be addressed by eminent speakers, but has not yet completed its program.

Perhaps the greatest meeting will be held in Berks county, where the Democrats promise to outdo any previous efforts in the way of an outdoor meeting. Senator Grim, the Democratic candidate for Governor, will be present and sound the campaign keynote.

During the following week Senator Grim will make a tour of certain western counties and will speak at meetings arranged for by local committees.

On September 12 he will speak through Cambria county, beginning at Johnstown, and will then go into West moreland county, where he will address several meetings.

Allegheny county will be invaded next and meetings will be held in Pittsburg, Allegheny, McKeesport and Braddock.

From thence the party will go in automobiles down through Fayette, holding meetings at Uniontown, Connellsville and other places. On September 16 Senator Grim will invade the county of John K. Tener, the Republican nominee, and will make several addresses in Washington county.

Greene county will be the next to be visited and there several meetings will be held, Senator Grim returning home on the night of the 17th.

Political Notes.

At a recent meeting of the executive and legislative committees of the State Grange, Wm. T. Creasy, having lost the nomination for senator in his district and having joined the Keystone Party, wanted to take the strangers with him into the Keystone movement and to that end introduced in the meeting a resolution endorsing Berry for Governor. There was a storm of protest from the grangers, and Mr. Creasy finding but one other besides himself to support his resolution withdrew it and it was not heard of again.

Stocks put up for collateral by Wm. H. Berry, the Keystone party candidate for Governor, as security for a loan of $15,000 from Colonel J. M. Guffey, Democratic leader, were sold under the hammer last Wednesday on behalf of the holder of the note, a Pittsburg bank. The stocks were upwards of 2,700 shares in the Berry Engineering Company, and they brought $700. The note was retained by the bank, which at once began suit against Mr. Berry in Common Pleas Court No. 4, of this county to recover the balance due on the paper. Mr. Berry is expecting the Keystone party leaders to come to his aid.

Col. George E. Mapes, secretary of the Keystone party, gave out last week the names of members of the notification committee for the notification exercises at Wilkes-Barre, the meeting Mr. Berry will attend and his running mate Clarence D. Gibbons has refused to attend. On this committee of the Keystone party from Adams county appear the names of Chas. W. Bucher of Mt. Joy township, and from York county, J. W. C. Austin of York.

Real Estate Sales.

John E. Hostetter, trustee in bankruptcy of F. J. Sneiderer, last Wednesday sold at public sale the farm in Oxford township near New Oxford, of 86 acres, to Andrew H. Rudisill for $300 per acre. A house on High street, Hanover, was sold to A. L. King of Midway, for $2710, and another property in same place for $612.

Frank Naylor has sold his Reading township farm near Round Hill of 77 acres to Wm. Bortner of Hamilton township for $1800.

John Hoover sold his farm of 15 acres in Reading township to Luther Markle for $900.

J. Harry Huber of this place has bought two farms near Idaville. One of 70 acres and the other of 80 acres, and one from Henry Meads and the other from J. H. Little and Mrs. Group. The properties will be converted into a farm.

Mr. E. P. Miller Resigns.

The Retail Merchants' Association held a meeting on last Friday evening and the members present were much surprised to have the resignation of E. P. Miller as president, placed before them. Mr. Miller had been president since the organization of the association a year and a half ago, and had been active in its organization and management. The association in its short existence has accomplished more for the town and business interests than any other similar organization ever attempted. Mr. Miller's intention to relinquish the presidency was unknown to any of the members and while formally accepted the association was not prepared to go ahead with the election of a new president. On motion the election of a president went over to the next regular meeting, the second Friday in October.

A report of the committee on the National Guard encampment was heard and discussed at some length.

The subject of preparation for the dedication of the Pennsylvania monument on September 27 was also discussed. According to information received 6000 Pennsylvania veterans had been sent applications for transportation and it was expected that over 4000 orders for transportation would be asked for and issued and that that would mean at the lowest calculation over 6000 persons will be in Gettysburg from Sept. 24 to 27, and these will be augmented by many more thousands returning from the Grand Army encampment at Atlantic City. Plans were discussed by the association for the accommodation of this crowd, the consensus of opinion being that unless some plans were made there would be great confusion and many people might receive a bad impression. The plan which is being followed is the furnishing of a letter to the Pennsylvania Monument Commission to be sent with every order of transportation, calling attention to need to make arrangements for boarding and lodging and that if the same have not been engaged to at once write the Entertainment Committee, stating number in party and price willing to be paid and assignment will be issued to hotel or boarding house. This committee will have a list of all hotels, boarding houses and residences where boarding or lodging can be had and from this list an assignment will be made as applications are received and it is likely the town will be thoroughly canvassed as applications are received. It is proposed to give a coupon to house to which a party is assigned and send a duplicate to the party, giving location so that there will be no difficulty in finding accommodations. If it becomes necessary it is believed that the State will send hundreds of cots, pillows and blankets from Harrisburg and that these can be placed in halls and other suitable places.

Help the Delivery Service.

Postmaster C. Wm. Beales will send to every home in Gettysburg at an early date, the following letter. It is sent at the direction of the Postoffice Department, for the purpose of increasing the efficiency of the carrier service.

The best method to help the service would be for every householder to cut a suitable slot in the front door and where more than one family occupy house accessible boxes should be erected. The letter to be sent out is as follows:

"By direction of the Postoffice Department the attention of patrons is invited to the advantages of providing facilities for the receipt of their mail by erecting conveniently accessible boxes or cutting suitable slots in their doors. Such action would enable the postmaster to give a prompter and better delivery service with the means at his disposal, since the carriers can cover much more territory in less time if not compelled to wait an answer to their ring. Private receptacles for mail are also a great convenience to the householder, obviating the necessity of responding to the carrier's call at inconvenient moments and permitting the safe delivery of mail in the absence of members of the household. They also prevent the occasional necessity of carriers returning from his route without delivering mail because of failure to answer his ring within a reasonable time, and enable him to make deliveries to patrons living on or near the end of the route at an earlier hour.

"It has been shown by actual experience that the benefits derived by patrons of city delivery from the use of such receptacles far outweigh the small expense involved. As this office is interested in furnishing the best possible service at least expense, your compliance with the foregoing suggestions will be much appreciated."

Church Notice.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Sarah J. and the late Edward J. Kuhn, of Middletown. The groom is assistant treasurer of the Jameton Estates Company, real estate operators on Long Island, of which Timothy Woodruff is president. Mr. and Mrs. Holly left over the Pennsylvania railroad on a trip through Canada and the Great Lakes. They will be at home after November 15th, at No. 4, Beaton Place, Jamaica, Long Island.

HARMIS--DILLON. Navin O. Harmis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Harmis of Littlestown, and Mrs. Gerie G. Dillon of Punxsutawney, started out last week on what was supposed by the friends to be a vacation trip of each, but on Wednesday, Aug. 21, it was turned up at a honeymoon when they turned up at the Dauphin county recorder's office, procured a marriage license and were married immediately by Squire Martin Zoll, the marrying clerk of the recorder's office. The bride is a widow and is some eleven years her husband's senior. He is twenty-six. He is a boiler maker; she is a dressmaker. Part of the honeymoon was spent with the groom's parents in Littlestown.

Zhea, both of this place, were united in marriage at 5 o'clock Monday morning in St. Francis Xavier Church by Rev. Father Hayes. The attendants were Miss Genevieve Ramer and George Roemer. The young people left on the 5:55 train on the Reading for a wedding trip to Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

Seminary Opens Next Week.

The Theological Seminary of this place will open on next Tuesday and this event will be marked by a new departure for that institution. The Refectory on the west side of the avenue and a short distance from the old Seminary building, is about finished and ready to be occupied. The building is a handsome addition to the Seminary plant, being of brick with brownstone trimmings and has been most conveniently arranged for the purposes for which it was erected.

The building contains on the first floor a large dining hall, sixty feet by thirty-three feet, and is well lighted, and from its large windows can be seen beautiful mountain views. The room has been tastefully finished with exposed woodwork overhead. On the same floor is a reception room, large pantry and kitchen. On the second floor are the apartments for the family who will conduct the refectory.

Mrs. Anna Shoop with her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Warren, and their father John Weyand, of this place, will take charge of the refectory. A committee of students will co-operate with Dr. J. A. Singmaster in starting the refectory and it will be run on the club plan to furnish boarding amid pleasant surroundings to the students at cost. Many seminarians have been boarding throughout the town, requiring long walks to meals and it is believed the refectory will fill a great need for that institution.

To Dr. J. A. Singmaster belongs the credit for this new building. He has been planning it for several years and when the Board of Trustees approved of his plans it placed upon him the burden of collecting the funds for its erection. J. A. Dempwolf, of York, was the architect but Dr. Singmaster gave much of his time since the work of erection began to supervising the work.

Horse Recovered.

A gray horse was found in woods of Charles Fuhrman, near Edgegrove, on Tuesday of last week. In the woods was also found a fine rubber tire runabout. The harness was on the horse. The horse was taken care of by John Liversperger, who lives near Conewago Chapel, who found the horse very tired when found. On last Saturday Wm. Kemper of near Dillsburg proved the team was his property. It was stolen while he was at the Grangers' Picnic. There is no clue whatever as to who took the team, whether by mistake, or to get home and then abandoned it.

Arrested for Stealing Purse.

Sylvester Hamilton, colored, was arrested at Grangers by Constable John Shaper on charge of theft of pocket watch and money. He is charged with stealing a watch and some money from a lady in a store window in Jameton Estates Company, real estate operators on Long Island, of which Timothy Woodruff is president. Mr. and Mrs. Holly left over the Pennsylvania railroad on a trip through Canada and the Great Lakes. They will be at home after November 15th, at No. 4, Beaton Place, Jamaica, Long Island.

On Saturday, Sept. 17, Chas. S. Mumper will hold a second hand furniture sale in the Square.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

P. O. S. of A. HOLDS CONVENTION AND PARADE

Eight Camps Represented in the Convention and Parade with Three Bands.

Monday, Sept. 5, Labor Day, was fittingly celebrated in Gettysburg. Half the day was a holiday for many of our people, and they enjoyed the parade of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, and the music the three bands generously dispensed in the afternoon.

The second annual district convention of the P. O. S. of A. was held in the morning in the hall of Washington Camp No. 414. Over thirty delegates were present at the convention. Each camp is entitled to two delegates for every 50 members and there was present from the different camps in the county as follows: Arendtsville 5, Bendersville 1, New Oxford 5, Heildersburg 1, East Berlin 4, Gettysburg 6, Littlestown 6 and Hunterstown 2.

The following officers were elected: District President, Chas. L. Brown of East Berlin; Pres., H. W. Taylor of Arendtsville; Vice President, Geo. F. Duttera of Littlestown; Master of Forms, F. C. McCadden of New Oxford; Secretary, Geo. D. Sheely of New Oxford; Treasurer, C. L. Brown; Conductor, Geo. Raffensperger of Hunterstown; Inspector, J. F. Pitzer of Littlestown; Guard, I. A. Sheely of New Oxford; Assistant Secretary, Wm. Brown of Hunterstown, and Chaplain, M. S. Orner of Gettysburg.

The parade moved from the Square at about two o'clock in the following order: Marshalls Price Oyler and Theodore McAlister, Citizens' Band of Gettysburg; Orator J. Calvin Strayer in carriage with Prof. H. M. Roth, W. A. Burgoon and Luther Sowers, Sons of Veterans Reserves, the Penaville Band and the New Oxford Camp.

The second division was led by Marshall H. W. Taylor and was composed of Biglerville Band and representatives from Arendtsville, Bendersville, Heildersburg, East Berlin, Littlestown and Hunterstown Camps, and ending with a large turn out of members of the Gettysburg Camp.

At the conclusion of the parade a public meeting was held in the Court House and a well filled house listened with interest to the addresses. Prof. Sowers was Master of Ceremonies and opened the meeting with a short speech. Prof. Burgoon spoke on the support given the schools by the P. O. S. of A. and the need of the financial support every one must give the school and the moral support that should be given so that our money be spent to the best advantage.

J. Calvin Strayer was then introduced and briefly reviewed the history of the P. O. S. of A., and a number of the principles the Order stands for, the common schools, the compulsory school law, the sacredness of the ballot and high ideals of citizenship.

Prof. Sowers concluded the exercises with a few remarks upon the successful meeting of the day.

The district convention will meet next year at Littlestown.

Gypsies Gone.

The band of gypsies who took out a license at an expense of $50 to do business in Adams county for the remainder of the year, left last week for unknown parts. They were the worst behaved band of gypsies that ever went through this place. They were ordered out of stores but when unwatched slipped back and gave our people a good deal of annoyance in a number of ways.

They went to Franklin county from this place and on the turnpike near the old Buena Vista Springs Hotel, captured a horse. The animal was grazing on the roadside and it was driven along ahead by the gypsies until a sufficient distance away to enable them to include it among their own herd of horses. Two men who passed the gypsies say they had the horse in their string but the animal escaped and returned home just as its owner was preparing to go in pursuit.

Baseball.

The Catholic baseball team won first place in the Sunday School baseball league. They lost to College team on Tuesday of last week by score of 2 to 4 and on Monday evening won from Reformed team by score of 4 to 2, making three victories of 5 games and having lost two games.

The Catholic games to be played here will be a standing of other teams in the league. The United States team will play the Catholics with 8 o'clock. The Catholic team will play the Reformed team at 7 o'clock and the Catholics will play the Reformed team at 8 o'clock.

Keystone Party in Adams.

A meeting was held in this place the night of last week for the purpose of electing officers for the Adams county party. The following were elected: Chairman, Chas. L. Brown; Secretary, W. A. Bream; Treasurer, W. A. Bream; and Theodore McAlister. Mr. Bucher was a candidate for the Democratic County Committee, and at one time a candidate for the Legislature.

Social efforts are being made to make the meet of the Gettysburg Driving Club on next Saturday afternoon, Sept. 10, an exceptional success.

—Miss Jennie Howard has returned from an extended visit with friends in Mt. Gretna and Lancaster.

—Mrs. Lizzie Wain and daughter of Washington, D. C. are town visitors.

THE SEPTEMBER MAGAZINES

In this direction will be quickly appreciated, and the word will pass around
 among the tribes, until the wilder-
 sorts come in and domesticate themselves.

My Clinton home is populous with
 not only robins and cardinals, but gros-
 beaks and indigo birds, and purple
 finches and tanagers, and of late wood thrush and the Wilson's thrush have come to nest close by my house—singing in the shrubbery, with those long,
 silvery, echoing notes that a few years
 ago were heard only from the distant forest.

The First Free School in America.

A very short distance from and plainly in view of the windows of the National Magazine office, 944 Dorchester Avenue, Boston, stands an ancient and long disused building, painted yellow, in front of which the city
 of Boston has erected a massive block
 of granite encasing a great bronze
 tablet with this inscription:

Town Meeting Square

Near This Site

The First Settlers of Dorchester

Who Came on the Ship Mary and John

June, 1630

Erected the First Meeting House

Here They Held Their First Town

Meeting and Established

The First Free School in America

By Vote of the Town in 1639

It Became the First Free

Public School Supported by

A Direct Tax Upon the Citizens

Erected by the City of Boston

June 3, 1909.

Here, then, if some lover of the free
 public school system of America wishes
 to make a pilgrimage to its very
 source, must he come with reverent
 head and heart, where amid the city
 streets the turf is still green, and tall trees burgeon and grow, where first of all the children were welcomed to an education at the cost of the taxpayers
 of the town.

It was nearly forty years later that the Colony of Massachusetts Bay ordained that the other towns in their jurisdiction should follow the example
 set by Dorchester in 1639.—Charles Winslow Hall in "School Teaching as a Trade," in the "National Magazine"
 for September.

A Baby-Saving Campaign.

The Civic Federation pictures of Chicago with the startling headline
 "Don't Kill Your Baby," appeared on every possible blank space that afforded a smooth area twenty-eight by forty-two inches. From the street-car lines they could not be seen, except here and there along such routes as traversed "residence" streets, but the minute one left the car, the posters
 were much in evidence, and every-
 where the language was suited carefully to the prevailing nationality
 of the neighborhood. The posters are hung from the walls of society meeting rooms in many parishes throughout the city, where the mothers who need the lesson most not only will see them, but will see them under the most impressive circumstances. Nearly every mother in the parishes, whose
 baby has been baptized within a year,
 receives a card bearing the "Civic Federation Babies," the warning, "A baby's life depends upon its food," a set of instructions on care and feeding of little babies, and a list of the baby tents and sanatoria.

To all appearances the campaign is
 "doing the work"; that is, it is stimulating a more general interest and reaching more people than have been reached before. But there is need of
 it. This summer has been the hardest for babies of any in recent years.
 —Douglas Sutherland in "The World
 To-Day" for September.

Work as a Universal Panacea.

I consider work one of the greatest blessings. I am not sure but that it is the greatest blessing, says Erman
 J. Ridgway in "The Definite" for September. I must think it is, for I recall now that I wrote four injunctions in my boy's Birth Book, and work heads the list. Work keeps the body healthy, the mind steady. When the heart is sick—work. When hope is dim—work. After failures get up and work. Go at obstacles on the run. Tackle impossibilities hard.
 Measure to-day by last year, five years ago. If gaining, fire; work! If losing, too bad! work harder. Be glad that you have work to do. And if you haven't any definite work, find it
 quick, and get at it. If you have done
 your work, and earned leisure, and are not worn out, don't rust out. Travel,
 study; go in for community work;
 lend a hand; help somebody somewhere, somehow. That is living.

It is the Plus Vitality that Counts.

Our judgments, our opinions, our actions in life are very much colored
 and affected by our bodily condition.
 Everything a dyspeptic thinks or does
 is necessarily affected by his condition. He cannot afford it any more than he can change the color of his eyes, says Orison Sweet Marden in
 "Success Magazine."

It was never intended that human beings should be ailing, or sick; it was not intended that their efforts should be withdrawn from the world's service. There are hundreds of evidences in our construction that we were intended for happiness, enjoyment and usefulness. In short, that we were formed for health. Man was made for achievement; and to achieve great things one must feel that thrill of bounding health, that fullness of physical force, that buoyancy and exuberance of animal life which makes one
 "cut in the mere joy of being alive."
 The man who has such superb
 health that he always has a large amount of plus, a lot of the positive
 in his thought, instead of the minus,
 the negative, found in the weak, sickly
 man, ought to be a much larger producer than his weaker brother, because he is in a superior position to create. The inventive faculties, the springs of resourcefulness, are much stronger in the man with a great physical surplus than in a man with a physical deficit.

The "PURE FOOD LAW"

is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both
 to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head,
 nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label.
 Hence you can use it safely.

Fashionable Tailored Suits for Aug.

"No ripple of fullness will be visible anywhere in the tailored suits for autumn," says Grace Margaret Gould
 in "Woman's Home Companion" for September. "Skirts will be short and very close cut. But Paris goes too far,
 she becomes very far off when she advocates a skirt a yard and a half around. If the American woman wore a skimpy skirt of this sort, she would never be able to walk gracefully, and
 hopping is not exactly in her line.
 Paris makes a mistake when she dictates to American women the absurd."
 "However, all the new skirts will have the long, narrow effect. Even the sleeves of the tailored suits will carry out this idea. They will be long and plain and put in at the shoulder without any fullness whatever. And it is quite noticeable that as they near the wrist they will widen out a trifle just
 to emphasize the straight-line effect."
 "The twenty-four-inch-length coat
 will be more fashionable than the thirty-inch, and the twenty-six-inch
 and the twenty-eight-inch lengths will undoubtedly be the most popular of
 all. A number of the new short coats
 suggest the box coat of other seasons.
 Since the coat of the tailored suit is
 to be short, this brings into fashion
 again the very long separate coat
 which is here and here to stay
 throughout the fall and winter, for in dress, like many other things, variety
 is welcomed by the American woman."

The American.

(By Reginald Wright Kaufman.)

He takes the Faiths of Other Lands.

Faiths that so false and futile seem.

And by the work of his own hands

Makes real the thing they did but dream.

So now he keeps their fast or feast

As they, the dead men kept it then;

But in the West and not the East.

He looks for Christ to come again.

The Modern School House.

"Good Housekeeping" for September has a valuable article on the Modern School House, illustrated with commodious single story building with top lighting and sags during the past few years, a marked change in school

 conditions has taken place in various parts of the country. This applies to the schools in cities, towns and the country. The country school, particularly, has made great advancement.
 One tendency now is to make the district school the center of community interests. It is not only a place for the education of children, but for the improvement and pleasure of parents
 as well. This new movement is known as the public school extension. It is brought about by incorporating a library and an auditorium in the school house. The advantage of the farmer is obvious.

Work as a Universal Panacea.

I consider work one of the greatest blessings. I am not sure but that it is the greatest blessing, says Erman J. Ridgway in "The Delineator" for September. I must think it is, for I recall now that I wrote four injunctions in my boy's Birth Book, and work heads the list. Work keeps the body healthy, the mind steady. When the heart is sick—work. When hope is dim—work. After failures get up and work. Go at obstacles on the run. Tackle impossibilities hard. Measure to-day by last year, five years ago. If gaining, fire; work! If losing, too bad! work harder. Be glad that you have work to do. And if you haven't any definite work, find it quick, and get at it. If you have done your work, and earned leisure, and are not worn out, don't rust out. Travel, study; go in for community work; lend a hand; help somebody somewhere, somehow. That is living.

It is the Plus Vitality that Counts.

Our judgments, our opinions, our actions in life are very much colored and affected by our bodily condition. Everything a dyspeptic thinks or does is necessarily affected by his condition. He cannot afford it any more than he can change the color of his eyes, says Orison Sweet Marden in "Success Magazine."

It was never intended that human beings should be ailing, or sick; it was not intended that their efforts should be withdrawn from the world's service. There are hundreds of evidences in our construction that we were intended for happiness, enjoyment and usefulness. In short, that we were formed for health. Man was made for achievement; and to achieve great things one must feel that thrill of bounding health, that fulness of physical force, that buoyancy and exuberance of animal life which makes one exult in the mere joy of being alive.

The man who has such superb health, that he always has a large amount of plus, a lot of the positive in his thought, instead of the minus—the negative found in the weak, sickly man, ought to be a much larger producer than his weaker brother, because he is in a superior position to create. The inventive faculties, the springs of resourcefulness are much stronger in the man with a great physical surplus, with a large health reserve, than in the one who is positive. The man who is not up to the physical standard always labors at a great disadvantage. It is the plus vitality, the plus energy that counts.

Fashionable Tailored Suits for Aug.

"No ripple of fullness will be visible anywhere in the tailored suits for autumn," says Grace Margaret Gould in "Woman's Home Companion" for September. "Skirts will be short and very close cut. But Paris goes too far, she becomes very far off when she advocates a skirt a yard and a half around. If the American woman wore a skimpy skirt of this sort, she would never be able to walk gracefully, and hopping is not exactly in her line. Paris makes a mistake when she dictates to American women the absurd. However, all the new skirts will have the long, narrow effect. Even the sleeves of the tailored suits will carry out this idea. They will be long and plain and put in at the shoulder without any fullness whatever. And it is quite noticeable that as they near the wrist they will widen out a trifle just to emphasize the straight-line effect.

"The twenty-four-inch-length coat will be more fashionable than the thirty-inch, and the twenty-six-inch and the twenty-eight-inch lengths will undoubtedly be the most popular of all. A number of the new short coats suggest the box coat of other seasons. Since the coat of the tailored suit is to be short, this brings into fashion again the very long separate coat which is here and here to stay throughout the fall and winter, for in dress, like many other things, variety is welcomed by the American woman."

The American.

(By Reginald Wright Kauffman.)

He takes the Faiths or Other Lands,
Faiths that so false and futile seem.
And by the work of his own hands
Makes real the thing they did but dream.

So now he keeps their fast or feast
As they, the dead men kept it then:
But in the West and not the East,
He looks for Christ to come again.
—September "Sunset."

The Modern School House.

"Good Housekeeping" for September has a valuable article on the Modern School House, illustrated with ton lighting and says during the past few years, a marked change in school conditions has taken place in various parts of the country. This applies to the schools in cities, towns and the country. The country school, particularly, has made great advancement. One tendency now is to make the district school the center of community interests. It is not only a place for the education of children, but for the improvement and pleasure of parents as well. This new movement is known as the public school extension. It is brought about by incorporating a library and an auditorium in the school house. The advantage of the farmer is obvious.

Crisis in Republican Party.

The Democratic magazine, "National Monthly," for September, has an editorial clearly indicating the crisis in the Republican party, saying "The Republican disaffection is a natural result of a policy of favoritism, privilege and patronage, which has grown yearly since Grover Cleveland left the White House, and which has reached its most dangerous climax in the Roosevelt-Taft administrations. Though trumpeting protests against corruption ravages, Theodore Roosevelt failed to check the advance; in fact, his administration fostered their efforts, as exemplified in the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company case, and again in his refusal to proceed against the Sugar Trust, although its stealings had been repeatedly brought to his attention. The action of President Taft in accepting the Payne-Aldrich Tariff as the best tariff measure ever adopted by a Republican Congress, together with the administration's corporation and railroad recommendations are conclusive proof that the Republican party has not altered its policy, and revolt against it is not likely to be checked by throwing a few Jonahs overboard.

Greatest Living Master of the Piano

"The Musician" of Boston, for September, is a Leschetzky number in which Edwin Hughes tells the story of the life of one of the greatest living masters of pianoforte. Theodore Leschetzky, of Vienna, and who has taught more world famous pianists than any other master in the history of the piano art. In the interview with writer this master teacher compared the struggle nowadays for the acquisition of an enormous technique to the distraction of the proper amount of attention to the more musical qualities of pianoforte playing, with the rise and fall of the generation of chorists and predicts for it a like fate. He is of the opinion in 500 years; possibly 200 or 300 years piano playing will be a thing of the past. At present it is at the very height of its popularity. But there are two things which will keep it alive so long as this is at all possible. These are tone and rhythm. He who possesses these to marked degree can always be sure of his success with the public. September "Musician" contains 24 pages of music.

THE "PURE FOOD LAW"

is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

Swimming Record—Broken Arm—Arrested Because Wanted in Baltimore.

Thieves made a wholesale raid on the farm in Berwick township on which Allen Sunday is tenant, on a recent night and carried off a lot of chickens, hams, shoulders and several bushels of apples and did not leave a single clue to their identity.

John Sachs of Gettysburg, while in camp at Dicks' Dam, swam from the bridge to the breast of the dam and returned to starting point in an hour and eleven minutes with one minute rest at dam and in this feat broke the previous record by two minutes.

Clinton Markel had his left arm broken near wrist while employed on farm of Henry Strine near White Hall. The arm was caught in the fly wheel of a gasoline engine.

Clarence J. Huff was recently arrested near Bonneauville by Deputy Sheriff George Fissel. The information leading to the arrest of Huff was received from Police Marshal Thomas F. Parnan, of Baltimore. Huff is alleged to have stolen $200 from a party whose name is not disclosed. He succeeded in evading the police for several months but was finally traced across the State line. When interviewed by the Deputy Sheriff, Huff offered no resistance. He merely said, "Well, I guess I am the man you are after but I know nothing about the charge."

W. C. Alwine and W. H. Carbaugh, the energetic brick manufacturers at Berlin Junction, have each fitted up their respective plants with means of fighting fires, should any occur. Pipes have been put down from the large ponds and a sufficient quantity of hose secured that any part of the yards or any of the buildings can be reached. It is so arranged that the water can be forced over any of the buildings by the large engines which are kept in operation to manufacture brick day and night.

William Rhoads of Harrisburg, received injuries by being jammed between an elevator and platform at the Pennsylvania Station last week. He was hurried to the hospital and found to have a broken leg and badly bruised neck and shoulders. He was married about a year ago to Nettie Trostle of Ladimore township.

While Wm. Gross, tenant on the John Flemming farm, near New Oxford, along the York pike, was driving a fat hog, of good size, to town, the animal was run down by a large auto and so badly injured that it had to be killed, which was done immediately by bleeding, and thus the meat was not all rendered unfit for use.

A PICNIC was held at Ladimore for benefit of Howard Fickel, whose wife and son had to be taken to hospital for treatment.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun. The renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

One-Sided Cities.

If streets are one-sided, cities are, too. No one, as far as the present writer knows, has ever attempted to give an explanation of the fact that when a town sits astride a river that flows east and west, the north side has a monopoly of the best streets. It certainly is so in London, as it was in ancient Rome. Glasgow is another case in point. In Paris too, the north side of the river has distinctly the advantage of the south. As for New-castle-on-Tyne, its general attitude toward this overgrown and rather grimy quarter on the south bank of the Tyne is that of one who says, "Can any good thing come out of Gateshead?" Why should this be so? And why should the west end of every city you can find on the map be, from a social point of view, far removed from the east? Why is not Whitechapel Road Piccadilly? To the unprejudiced ear the names ring with equal music.—London Chronicle.

Unacquainted With Romance.

Being a poet, Tennyson was naturally opposed to the stern realism of the present day. "Scientific knowledge," said he, "is spreading, and is crushing all the romance out of children's lives. It was only yesterday," he continued, "I was walking in the fields with one of my nephews—a little chap of ten—when we came to one of those peculiar circles which the country people call 'fairy rings.' 'Look,' I said, 'look here, my boy; here is a fairy ring.' 'A what, uncle?' he said. 'Why, a fairy ring.' The old folks would tell you that these fairy rings are so called because the fairies were dancing here last night.' 'Oh, uncle,' he replied, quite gravely, 'it is quite well known that these fairy rings, as you call them, are caused by a species of fungus.'"

John Sachs of Gettysburg, while in camp at Dicks' Dam, swam from the bridge to the breast of the dam and returned to starting point, in an hour and eleven minutes with one minute rest at dam and in this feat broke the previous record by two minutes.

Clinton Markel had his left arm broken near wrist while employed on farm of Henry Strine near White Hall. The arm was caught in the fly wheel of a gasoline engine.

Clarence J. Huff was recently arrested near Bonneville by Deputy Sheriff George Fissel. The information leading to the arrest of Huff was received from Police Marshal Thomas F. Farnan, of Baltimore. Huff is alleged to have stolen $200 from a party whose name is not disclosed. He succeeded in evading the police for several months but was finally traced across the State line. When interviewed by the Deputy Sheriff, Huff offered no resistance. He merely said, "Well, I guess I am the man you are after but I know nothing about the charge."

W. C. Alwine and W. H. Carbaugh, the energetic brick manufacturers at Berlin Junction, have each fitted up their respective plants with means of fighting fires, should any occur. Pipes have been put down from the large ponds and a sufficient quantity of hose secured that any part of the yards or any of the buildings can be reached. It is so arranged that the water can be forced over any of the buildings by the large engines which are kept in operation to manufacture brick day and night.

William Rhoads of Harrisburg, received injuries by being jammed between an elevator and platform at the Pennsylvania Station last week. He was hurried to the hospital and found to have a broken leg and badly bruised neck and shoulders. He was married about a year ago to Nettie Trostle of Latimore township.

While Wm. Gross, tenant on the John Flemming farm, near New Oxford, along the York pike, was driving a fat hog, of good size, to town, the animal was run down by a large auto and so badly injured that it had to be killed, which was done immediately by bleeding, and thus the meat was not all rendered unfit for use.

A PICNIC was held at Latimore for benefit of Howard Fickel, whose wife and son had to be taken to hospital for treatment.

The Renewal of a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

One-Sided Cities.
If streets are one-sided, cities are, too. No one, as far as the present writer knows, has ever attempted to give an explanation of the fact that when a town sits astride a river that flows east and west, the north side has a monopoly of the best streets. It certainly is so in London, as it was in ancient Rome. Glasgow is another case in point. In Paris too, the north side of the river has distinctly the advantage of the south. As for New-castle-on-Tyne, its general attitude toward this overgrown and rather grimy quarter on the south bank of the Tyne is that of one who says, "Can any good thing come out of Gateshead?" Why should this be so? And why should the west end of every city you can find on the map be, from a social point of view, far removed from the east? Why is not Whitechapel Road Piccadilly? To the unprejudiced ear the names ring with equal music.—London Chronicle.

Unacquainted With Romance.
Being a poet, Tennison was naturally opposed to the stern realism of the present day. "Scientific knowledge," said he, "is spreading, and is crushing all the romance out of children's lives. It was only yesterday," he continued, "I was walking in the fields with one of my nephews—a little chap of ten—when we came to one of those peculiar circles which the country people call 'fairy rings.' 'Look,' I said; 'look here, my boy; here is a fairy ring.' 'A what, uncle?' he said. 'Why, a fairy ring! The old folks would tell you that these fairy rings are so called because the fairies were dancing here last night.' 'Oh, uncle,' he replied, quite gravely, 'it is quite well known that these fairy rings, as you call them, are caused by a species of fungus.'"

RAILROAD and CARROLL STS.

AN ADAMS COUNTY WOMAN

ONE OF THE OLDEST PERSONS
NOW LIVING IN THE COUNTY.

Delightfully Recalls Many Memories of Her Life Covering Period
Since Madison was President.

Mrs. Cassandra Barker, who has resided at Littlestown since the year 1847, is one of the oldest persons now living in Southern Pennsylvania. She was born in 1814, on a farm near the present site of the borough of Seven Valley, 8 miles south of York. At the time of her birth James Madison, the fourth president of the United States,
was serving his second term. This remarkable woman has lived while
twenty-two presidents were inaugurated.

When Mrs. Barker was born this nation, composed of nineteen states,
was engaged in what is known to history as the War of 1812-14. The population of this country at that time
did not exceed 12,000,000; the present
census will place the population at over 90,000,000. When Mrs. Barker
was a girl of ten years the steamboat
was a new invention. There was not a mile of railroad track in the world.
The sickle was used to cut the crops,
for the grain cradle had not come into
general use and the reaper and mower were not dreamed of. Most of the people in York county then wore clothing made out of flax grown on
the farms, or wool which had been
carded and rolled at the fulling mills.

The health of this aged woman, who will celebrate her 96th birthday in November next, is very good. Her memory is excellent and she talks with remarkable clearness about events
which occurred eighty-five and even ninety years ago. It was in 1820, ninety years ago, that she entered a
parochial school near Zeigler's church,
in North Codorus township. It was at that place that she acquired her education during the succeeding eight years.

Mrs. Barker is the daughter of Daniel Diehl, who owned a large farm, a tannery and a stone quarry near Zeigler's church. In 1829 a young Englishman who was working at the
tanner's trade for her father, went to Jefferson, then a new town in Cor-dorus township. He could not speak
a word of German and for that reason
frequently visited his friend Carrothers,
a jovial, good-natured Irishman, who worked at the hatter's trade at Jefferson. When this Englishman, whose name is supposed to have been John Richards, returned home he told Daniel Diehl, his employer, that he had passed through seven little valleys
on his way from Jefferson, and that where Diehl lived was the seventh valley. This story, related in clear tones by Mrs. Barker, gives the correct
origin of the name "Seven Valleys."

Mrs. Barker delights to recall the meteoric shower of 1833. During the darkness of the night meteors began
to shoot through the upper regions of the atmosphere. Presently tens of thousands of these harmless visitors were moving towards the earth. A few of them made a shrill sound, but in the main they caused very little noise. All the country round about became as light as day. Innocent people thought all the stars of the heavens
were falling to the earth and the world was coming to an end. This singular phenomenon came so suddenly that people had hardly time to think, and after the meteors ceased to fall early in the morning, no one cared to go to bed. Mrs. Barker said that that incident to her was even more exciting than the battle of Gettysburg.

She also told in a very interesting
way how the farmers cut their crops
nearly a hundred years ago. In 1828
Mr. Hoke, of West Manchester township, employed 60 men and women to reap a field of wheat. In 1829, her uncle, Adam Diehl, who lived on a farm adjoining that of her father,
wanted to reap two fields of wheat on Wednesday and Thursday, but rain fell until the following Monday. Meantime his sons rode out through the country, and even to York, securing 80
men and women to promise to help to reap the two fields in two days. The fields each contained about sixteen acres. Early on Monday morning 60
men and 20 women reached the Diehl
farm. They ate their breakfast and began to reap soon after the sun was
up. Forty men and women started at one end and forty at the other end,
and in a few hours the entire crop of two fields was standing on shocks. It was a feat almost equal to the work
now done by the modern reaper and binder, but in the days of long ago it took 80 persons to level the grain of two fields in 24 hours. Nearly all the girls and women in the neighborhood
helped to cook the dinner and prepare the supper for the 80 harvesters.

Mrs. Barker recalls the visit of General Lafayette to York in 1825. He passed up the turnpike from Baltimore
to York in a stage on his way to Harrisburg. At that time there were soldiers in York county who had fought under the great French General invited to visit this country as the "Guest of the Nation." Most of the Revolutionary soldiers then living
went to York to see Lafayette, and he held a reception at the Globe Inn,
which stood near the present site of the Colonial, in Centre Square.

It was in 1833, or 77 years ago, that Cassandra Diehl, the subject of this story, was married to Joseph Barker,
then engaged as a master carpenter in
erecting houses for Robert Coleman,
who operated a forge and bloomery at Spring Grove. A part of her wedding outfit was a saddle, a uridle and a martingale.

"In those days," says Mrs. Barker,
"nearly all the young women learned
to ride on horse-back. It was the custom to ride to church: one Sunday to Zeigler's, a short distance from Seven Valley; the next Sunday the young ladies and gentlemen rode to Wolff's
church in West Manchester township.
The third Sunday we attended services
in the White Church near Logansville and the following Sunday we rode down the turnpike to Shrewsbury. We all enjoyed ourselves on horseback and the girls of eighty years ago learned to ride as well as the boys. Services were held at all of the churches named, by the Lutherans, once every four weeks. The preaching and other services were all
conducted in the German language.
Some innocent people then believed that the Lord would not understand
any other language than the Pennsylvania Dutch. I suppose they meant it all right, but it surely seems funny nowadays."

"Gigs were owned by some, and a few of the farmers and other people,
in 1829 owned pleasure carriages. The modern buggy had not come into general use. Now we see hundreds of them at encampments, and other
gatherings of the country people."

Joseph Barker, her husband, built
the Ocker house at Littlestown in 1848, and for a period of 20 years conducted it as a first-class hotel. He had his most exciting experience as a hotel keeper in June and July, 1863.

On the morning of June 26 of that year, a band of Confederates entered Littlestown, the advance of Early's
Division, Ewell's Corps, of the Army
of Northern Virginia, which was then crossing the Maryland line into Pennsylvania. Mr. Barker fed some of the Southern officers at his hotel,
for he did not want to see them destroy private property. On the evening of June 29th, Gen. Kilpatrick's
division of Union cavalry bivouacked
for the night around Littlestown.
Kilpatrick and Custer lodged at the Barker House.

The next morning the division of 5000 men took part in the cavalry engagement with 6000 Confederates under Stuart at Hanover. On the same day Gen. Pleasanton, commanding
the entire cavalry corps of the Potomac
took up his headquarters in the Barker House. He sent out scouts repeatedly to ascertain what was going on in the vicinity of York, Hanover and Gettysburg.

About 8 o'clock in the evening
Pleasanton received a message from Kilpatrick that the latter had defeated Stuart at Hanover, and that the enemy was marching eastward. Later in the evening Slocum with 13,000
infantry entered Littlestown, coming from Frederick. The next morning they were ordered to Gettysburg.

Late in the night of July 1st, Gen.
Sedgwick, with his Sixth Army Corps
of 15,000 men, marched with great haste from Manchester, Md., through Littlestown, to Gettysburg, where the battle had opened that day.

After the battle hundreds of wounded soldiers were brought on ambulances from Gettysburg and placed on the cars at Littlestown. They were taken to hospitals at York, Baltimore
and Philadelphia. Mrs. Barker describes how Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, who had lost a leg at Gettysburg, was brought in a carriage to Littlestown
and sent on the cars to his home. This aged veteran, now in his 87th year, is still living in New York City, the last surviving corps commander of the Civil War.

Many officers and wounded men
were taken care of for several days at the Barker House. Mrs. Barker relates thrilling incidents of that time.
She has a vivid recollection of those days when our country was involved
in one of the greatest wars known in history.

Mrs. Barker resides with Mrs. Miller her eldest daughter. She is the mother of A. F. Baker and Mrs. Chas.
T. Kump, of Hanover; Charles Barker,
Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Yount, of Littlestown, and Mrs. William Howard,
of Haddonfield, N. J. She was the mother of fourteen children, six of whom are now living. Her husband

jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of com-

of common pleas, composed of all the
judges in commission in said courts.
Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts,
and shall be subject to such changes
as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law.
The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be
by law increased from time to time.
This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding
its adoption.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

BURGLARS AS LOVERS?

By MASON RAY

"Good night," Miss Prindle answered. She stood a moment longer on the rooming house steps to watch the slightly stooped figure in black broadcloth fade into the darkness.

"Been seeing me home from meeting every Thursday night night two years, and can't get up courage to propose," she mused as she entered and absent-mindedly climbed the stairs. In the upper hall she paused at a door, fished a key from her hand bag, unlocked the door and entered.

"Land sakes," she thought, seeing the room lighted, "I sure turned out the gas. What ever does this mean? Burglars?"

Miss Prindle claimed the quality of courage. Each night she inspected the housebreaker's well-known stronghold. Now as she stood glancing about a slight sound—as of muffled sneezing—attracted her attention.

"It is a burglar," she concluded. In confirmation of this a pair of boots showed beneath the valance at the foot of the bed.

"Don't move," she said sternly, addressing the feet. "If you do I'll shoot."

At the hall 'phone she hurriedly called up central, was connected with the police station and asked for men and a patrol.

"Hustle lively; I've a burglar for you," she explained.

From beneath the bed came in hollow tones: "For heaven's sake, Miss Prindle, don't call the police. I'm no thief."

"Then," demanded the astonished maiden lady, "who are you?"

"I'm Arthur Higgins. You've often met me on the stairs," declared the subterranean voice.

"If that's the truth," doubted Miss Prindle, "why are you concealed under my bed?"

"I'm not," denied the voice. "This is my bed. Your room is across the hall."

Miss Prindle looked about at the familiar furnishings. She remembered that the rooms were as similar as peas in a pod. She had, indeed, turned to the left instead of to the right and her key proved suited to both doors.

"But," she argued, unconvinced, "if you are that putty-faced bookkeeper why are you hiding under your own bed?"

"Because," patiently explained the voice in natural tones, having reversed position with the feet, "I thought you were Mrs. Buckley."

"Well, I ain't Mrs. Buckley, thank goodness, so crawl out and I'll send back the police."

"You can't," declared Arthur Higgins appearing at the door of his room. "And you've spoiled everything," he added gloomily.

Miss Prindle surveyed the pale young man with astonishment.

"I?" she cried. "I spoiled what?"

"The elopement," he declared. "I was about to elope with Mamie Buckley."

"Then," said Miss Prindle with energy, "if you have enough spunk to save that poor girl from her heathenish aunt I'll help you off."

"I have an auto waiting at the corner," explained the lover. "I thought, when you came, that all was discovered. I hoped to escape an interview with Mrs. Buckley. Such an interview would be painful."

"It would," agreed Miss Prindle. "And now the police will stop everything."

"Not if I can get you and the girl to the auto before they come," declared their friend.

"If you only will," implored Mr. Higgins.

"Go on and I'll have Mamie there in a minute," she promised.

In the family sitting room, guarded by her hard-faced, portly aunt, Miss Prindle found the fluffy-haired orphan.

"Mamie," the spinster ordered, "come and assist me a moment. You neglected to turn my bed around. I can't sleep with the head west."

But in the hall behind the closed sitting room door the girl was made to understand. In another minute they were at the side of the green auto. At the request of the lovers, Miss Prindle climbed in by Mamie and they were off with a whirr.

At the same instant, Mamie's suspicious aunt flung wide the front door. Her quick eye detected the runaways passing under an arc light. The police patrol at the moment entered her vision. They dashed up to her very curb.

"There they are; there, in the green motor. Fifty dollars reward if you get them," she screamed.

Instantly the electric patrol darted in pursuit. The officers had no reason to doubt that they were on the track of daring porch climbers.

Mamie, half fainting, sank back in the seat between Miss Prindle and her lover. The former snatched her own veil from her bonnet and tied it over the flying locks of the bride-to-be.

With bent head, Arthur guided the speeding motor between impeding carriages, shot past an oncoming trolley, then down a side street. Mamie wept from sheer fright at the danger of being overtaken.

"We'll never escape them," she cried, "and I'd rather die than return to aunt Jane!"

Miss Prindle's brain worked with vigor on the problem. How could she undo the evil wrought by her patrol call? To have the girl dragged back to her furiously angry aunt and the unpaid drudgery of the rooming house was not to be considered. Suddenly she caught sight of a stoop-shouldered figure walking in advance on the cement pavement. Instantly a plan crystallized into shape.

"Skip with Mamie down that side street," she ordered, "and make your train on foot. I'll keep the police busy until you're safe!"

Arthur obeyed with alacrity. In an instant the two lovers had disappeared down the ill-lighted cross street and their deliverer had hailed the figure in black.

"Mr. Crandall! Jerry!" she called. "Come here!"

Amazed, her aged escort to Thursday night meetings turned, advanced to her side and, at her command, mounted to the seat beside her.

"Friends of mine nearly lost their train," she explained as Mr. Crandall took the steering wheel. "Left me to take the car back to the garage. Lucky I saw you."

"They should have hired a chauffeur," complained Mr. Crandall. "I don't know much about motors."

Their pace proved his word. At break-neck speed they shot down the center of the wide, well-paved thoroughfare. Miss Prindle, glancing back, noted that the police patrol had untangled from the main street medley of hacks and trolleys and was once more in hot pursuit.

Foot by foot, the patrol crawled onward in its overlapping speed. Then one of the police officers reached out an arm and shut off the green motor's speed. The other man had stopped their own vehicle.

"I arrest you both for burglary," the nearer man informed them.

"Preposterous!" declared Mr. Crandall.

"We've just been to the station with friends," explained Miss Prindle. "They had to catch a train."

"Well," the officer said grimly, "you're going to the station again—the police station."

In vain Miss Prindle explained in full. Her story of herself, calling up the police was laughed to scorn.

When the police and prisoners reached the precinct station the hour was too late for a hearing. Nothing could be done toward liberty, especially as a short 'phone talk with Mrs. Buckley confirmed the night officer in holding the aged fugitives over till morning. Mr. Crandall's offer to secure bail went unheeded.

Despite the rude quarters given each suspect, the maiden lady rested calmly content. She had, indeed, gained more time for the eloping couple than she had planned, but the affair had been rounded out beyond possibility of failure. After a time lovers, green autos, patrols, angry aunts and aged gentlemen in black merged into kaleidoscopic medley. Miss Prindle slept.

The opening hour of court brought the elderly prisoners and Mrs. Buckley, the complainant, face to face. The latter stared at the culprits with undisguised amazement.

"Not them," she shrieked at the magistrate: "what do you 'spose I want of them old idiots?"

"Madam," warned the judge, "calm yourself."

"They're the wrong ones," half shrieked the angry woman.

"They're the ones she pointed out, your honor," stubbornly insisted one of the patrol police.

"The fools, the numskulls!" cried the complainant. "I sent them after my eloping niece and the addlepate she wanted to marry, not these!"

"Madam," decreed the judge, "you're fined $5 for contempt of court."

"Besides," added the judge, "the charge was burglary, not elopement."

"Who said anything about burglars?" snapped the enraged rooming house keeper. "I tell you it was an elopement!"

"Madam," again reminded the judge, "you're fined $10 for contempt of court."

He then addressed the prisoners.

"You're discharged," he said.

"There's no case against you."

"So," commented Mr. Jeremiah Crandall, as the two emerged from the dingy courtroom, "we're arrested for eloping, eh? Now, the correct termination to an elopement is marriage. Suppose we end this adventure consistently: shall we?"

"I'm willing," murmured Miss Prindle; "but isn't this proposal just—a bit—sudden?" she queried.

Steering an Aeroplane.

The driving of a motor car demands a fair measure of vigilance and nerve, but, by the general consent of those who have tried both forms of amusement, it is nothing to the steering of an aeroplane. From the point of view of personal daring and initiative, the newest method of travel finds a closer parallel in the early human feats of taming the horse for riding and learning to sail a boat than in the invention of the steamship or the railway engine. The prominence of the human element in the new pursuit comes naturally out in the concentration of popular interest even more in the "flying men" than in their machines. When railways and steamships were new the absorption of public attention in them was immense. But the machine then dwarfed the man.

Moving Day.

When the gentleman with decided tendencies toward looking after everybody's business but his own saw a furniture removal van being loaded near his house, he sallied forth into the street on investigation bent.

"I say, carter," he began bumptiously, "are the people upstairs moving?"

The carter looked at him scornfully. Then he wiped the perspiration from his manly brow.

"No, sir," he retorted grimly. "We're just taking the furniture for a drive!"

THE SEPTEMBER MAGAZINES

THE PRESENT FAILURE OF THE TAFT ADMINISTRATION

The Tariff Humbug—Tariff Fortunes and Evasions—The Story of an Adams County Family.

The Insurgent Element To-day.

Amos Pinchot in his article on "Two Revolutions Against Oligarchy" in the September "McClure's" says of the present administration:

"No party ever began an administration with clearer principles and a greater public service to perform than the party of Taft. The whole country, Democrats and Republicans alike, were impatient to help some one to drive the trusts out of politics. No party since 1869 has had such an opportunity to combine service to the party with service to the country. No party in our political history has so completely failed to justify the hope of the people."

"Restoration of government by the majority, reduction of tariff, and a vigorous prosecution of the conservation program of the last administration were three things demanded by the country. If, after the election, the Regular party leaders had kept faith, if they had shown that they considered driving the trusts out of politics, tariff reduction, and conservation something more than mere catchwords of campaign oratory, there would have been no divided party today. If they had evinced a real purpose to reduce the tariff in spite of the special interests in the East and to save the people's domain in spite of the special interests in the West, and if they had made a real effort to drive the trusts and railroads out of politics both in the East and the West, there never would have arisen an insurgent element to vex the Republican reactionaries, just as the insurgent element fifty years ago vexed the reactionary Whigs."

The Tariff Humbug.

"The case against the Payne-Aldrich Bill is grave and complicated. It perpetuates duties laid forty-five years ago as Civil War taxes; that is, it compels the people of the country to conduct a large number of their industries on a war tax basis. Many of its schedules are amazing caricatures of the doctrine of protection, made so by open and cynical violation of the protective principle, tricks and swindles hidden in a technical jargon that nobody but an expert can understand, and there is no escaping the conclusion that in most cases this obscurity has been cunningly devised that nobody else should understand it."

"The method by which the bill was made was the worst possible. Duties were traded in openly, like horses at a country fair. Although many of these duties affect chiefly the daily life of that great bulk of our population living on incomes, where every penny counts, they were treated as if they had relation to nothing but politics. And yet while acting with this frank commercialism, Congress as a body talked as if carrying out conscientiously the principles of Protection. There never was a greater humbug. Logic, consistency, sincerity, all were sacrificed in the making of the Payne-Aldrich Bill. Perhaps the worst of the many hypocrisies which characterized the operation was making labor pull the chestnuts out of the fire. It is to pay American wages that we have high duties. Yet nothing is clearer in tariff making today than the utterly inadequate share of the duties laid in Labor's name which go to Labor."—Editorial announcement in the September "American Magazine" of a series of articles by Ida M. Tarbell shortly to appear in that periodical on the subject of the tariff.

Tariff Fortunes and Evasions.

When the new Collector came in, the first curiosity he met with was that "those who had made fortunes by reason of high and protective tariff" were most unscrupulous in evading on their own luxuries or necessities the tax imposed. Tariffs were made for their profit, not their loss. Pittsburghers, he found, residents of the greatest protection-built cities, were the worst offenders.

It is a mocking spectacle—swollen tariff-born fortunes in skulking evasion of the mother that coddled them! Iron ore being protected by 11 per cent. duty, pig iron 12.98 per cent., and manufacturers of iron 41.88 per cent. L. Lanstorf, of Milwaukee, accumulated enormous holdings of ore lands in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan, and was able to leave his family exceedingly wealthy. A few months ago his widow and daughters came down the gang plank of the "Amerika" followed closely by a customs inspector who had observed at Quarantine that they had declared only $100 worth of dutiable goods—the amount allowed free entry. At the pier one of the daughters greeted a young man who had come to welcome her, and tossed to him a baby lamb coat. There came the hoary old explanation: "Why, it is an old coat, purchased on this side, and only repaired abroad." Under the lining the inspector found the foreign maker's label.

From the trunks pieces of silk, laces, made-up gowns were lifted, all of foreign make. When the three women were told that their persons would have to be searched, Mrs. Lanstorf protested. "You are subjecting us to humiliation. We are willing to pay the duty—we didn't understand." Two women inspectors, taking them back to their suite on the ship, compelled them to undress. Around the neck of one hung a pearl necklace. Franklin Clarkin in the September "Everybody's."

The House of Stud-baker.

The sturdy, thrifty Hollanders have been the progenitors of many men foremost today in the ranks of American Captains of Industry. Thomas Dreier has a strong and compelling story in "Human Life" for September of the founders of a great industrial enterprise known in every hamlet in the land—the House of Studebaker. Back in the eighteenth century it was that the first Studebaker set sail from the land of canals and windmills for the shores of America, and as far back as 1798 his descendants were wagon-builders. As the world moved, the Studebakers kept, if anything, a step or two in advance of the march of progress, and thereby proved their right to be considered Captains of industry.

John Studebaker, the best wagon-builder and blacksmith in his community, in the early part of the last century, may be considered the cornerstone of the present great house that bears his name. The heritage he left his sons was those bed-rock qualities of honesty, industry, courage and progressiveness—mighty levers in the hands of modern world-movers of invention and business.

The inventors of the telegraph, the telephone, the submarine cable, and the various machines that minister to the needs of mankind are as truly and as grandly missionaries to the race as those who give their lives to enlightening the nations that sit in darkness. The inventors, the manufacturers, and the distributors of the commodities of the world are Instruments of Destiny to bring mankind closer together, and the story of the rise of this great commercial House of Studebaker, and of its founders and builders, is fuller of romance and live human interest than anything the novelist's pen may attempt.

Night on the White Nile.

We had come down through the second of the great Nyanza lakes. As we sailed northward, its waters stretched behind us beyond the ken of vision, to where they were fed by streams from the Mountains of the Moon. On our left hand rose the frowning ranges on the other side of which the Congo forest lies like a shroud over the land. On our right we passed the mouth of the Victorian Nile, alive with monstrous crocodiles, and its banks barren of human life because of the swarms of the fly whose bite brings the torment which ends in death. As night fell we entered the White Nile, and steamed and drifted down the mighty stream. Its current swirled in long curves between endless ranks of plumed papyrus. White and blue, and red the floating water-lilies covered the lagoons and the still inlets among the reeds; and here and there the lotus lifted its leaves and flowers still above the surface. The brilliant tropic stars made tines of light on the lapping water as we ran on through the night. The river horses roared from the reed beds, and snorted and plunged beside the boat, and crocodiles slipped sullenly into the river as we glided by. Toward morning a mist arose and through it the crescent of the dying moon shone red and lurid. Then the sun flamed aloft and soon the African landscape, vast, lonely, mysterious, stretched on every side in a shimmering glare of heat and light; and ahead of us the great, strange river went twisting away into the distance. From "African Game Trails," by Theodore Roosevelt, in the September "Scribner."

For Sober Engineers.

It is safe to say that no other union, club or organization of any sort applies quite such heroic treatment to undesirable citizens as the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. One thing that the brotherhood most strenuously insists upon is that its members shall not drink. Thirty-five members were expelled for getting drunk in 1909, and their shame was publicly proclaimed in the journal. The treatment does not stop here, by any means. The brotherhood will not risk the lives of its members and the general public by permitting a drinking man to run an engine. When a man has been duly convicted of drinking, and punished according to the laws of the order, the facts are laid before the proper authorities on the road that employs him, and his discharge is demanded. In one notable instance the engineer of a fast train got drunk during his lay-over and disgraced himself. He was tried, convicted and expelled, and the offender's discharge requested in regular form. But as the engineer had been a good man, the railroad company demurred, saying that he had not been drunk while on duty.

"But," said the brotherhood, "there is no telling when a man who gets drunk off duty may take a notion to get drunk on duty; and we do not intend to take any chances on having a drunken man tearing through the country at sixty miles an hour, endangering the lives of others. It is unfair both to the employees in your service and to your patrons."

The culprit was discharged. He can never be employed on a railroad again—From Charles Frederick Carter's "The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers" in September "Century."

Even the Birds Help Us.

E. P. Powell, in the September "Outing," discussing our different allies in the country, says of the birds: We can easily induce a large number of birds to spend the coldest months around our northern homes. When they are not pecking at the bones which we hang for them outside our windows they will destroy myriads of the eggs of vermin, hidden under the bark of our fruit trees.

A very careful observer tells us that a single pair of house wrens will dispose of at least one thousand insects every day and that other birds serve us in about the same ratio. I want you to see this thing in its clearest light, as a matter of domestic economy to cultivate bird friendship. We must gather them about us and protect them, make our homes as pleasant to them as to ourselves. Any effort

Brodbeck's Statement.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Democratic County Committee of York County, held in York last week, the resignation of Wm. H. Long as chairman of the Democratic County Committee was presented and accepted with reluctance.

Former Clerk of the Courts J. Harry Stewart, who was the Democratic county committee chairman a few years ago, was elected to succeed Mr. Long.

Mr. Long, in reaching his decision to resign, was prompted to do so because of the important duties incumbent upon him in his capacity as great sachem of the Improved Order of Red Men of Pennsylvania. When the Democratic county committee, at its meeting some weeks ago, elected Mr. Long chairman, he indicated to the committee in his speech of acceptance his fear that the work he was engaged in for the Order of Red Men would require so much of his time that he would hardly be able to give to the Democratic cause the necessary time and effort it would require and which it deserved.

He now finds that he will be obliged to be out of the county on business for the Red Men a great deal of the time between now and the date of the election, and for the good of the party and the success of the Democratic ticket in November he insisted upon stepping down yesterday.

The new chairman, Mr. Stewart, will take up the work where Mr. Long left off, and inasmuch as he has been "through the mill" and is a good campaigner, with the assistance of the executive as well as the general committee, will lead the party to victory this fall.

The "York Daily," last Wednesday, with the apparent intention of discrediting the Democratic candidate for Congress, and opening up a mudslinging campaign with the evident purpose of clouding the real congressional issues of the failure of the Taft campaign and Cannonism, noticed the resignation of Wm. H. Long as follows:

"The resignation of Mr. Long as chairman of the Democratic county committee re-opens a breach which had prior to the convention of the committee existed between Mr. Long and Andrew R. Brodbeck, of Hanover, Democratic congressional candidate, and which, it was thought, had been healed when the former was made county chairman. Because Mr. Brodbeck refused to make a sworn denial of certain allegations against him, relating to his conduct in the Lefean-McSherry congressional campaign of 1904, and as to his conduct while sheriff and county chairman, is given as Mr. Long's reason for retiring from the chairmanship.

The allegations which Mr. Long wanted Mr. Brodbeck to deny by affidavits, his friends say, are as follows: That Brodbeck sold out his party when McSherry ran for congress; that he appropriated to his own use funds of the party while he was county chairman and that he made improper use of the people's money while he was sheriff.

In a letter to Mayor Jacob E. Weaver, who was one of those urging Long to accept the chairmanship, it is said that Mr. Long stated that he wanted Brodbeck to make affidavit that none of the above allegations were true.

Andrew R. Brodbeck, the Democratic candidate for congress in a dignified and calm way, denies the first two charges and presenting conclusive evidence of his loyalty to the Democratic party, and claims as follows:

Hanover, Pa., Sept. 1, 1910.

Editor of the Gazette.

As a refutation to the article in the York Daily, of the 21st inst., I beg to say that I am not at all surprised to note the allegations as contained therein, for I had been advised more than ten weeks ago by my friends, who had information from Republican sources in Hanover, that certain reports or allegations, intended to humiliate and embarrass me, would be circulated, and that this was to be made a campaign of denials and explanations, ostensibly to divert the attention of the voters from the real issues of the campaign.

These allegations are so maliciously false and untrue and such manifest political canards that I hardly need refute the statements.

The first allegation, "that Brodbeck sold out his party when McSherry ran for Congress." This report at first was that I voted and operated against Mr. Keesey, our candidate for congress in 1906, but when referred to the record of the vote in the Prothonotary's office from the First Ward, Hanover, wherein I reside and took an active part in said election showed that this ward in Hanover was carried by Mr. Keesey. Consequently that report was dropped and followed by similar report as to Mr. Ziegler, our candidate in 1908, and as soon as it became known that his vote was straight and that he lost only by a few votes in the ward, then that report was likewise abandoned, but was soon followed by a similar report as to Mr. McSherry, our candidate in 1904. The allegation as to Mr. McSherry is equally untrue as in the case of Mr. Keesey or Mr. Ziegler. I deny that I participated in any deal affecting any or all of the candidates named.

The allegation "that he appropriated to his own use funds of the party while he was county chairman" is answered by saying that I never was county chairman.

The allegation "that he made improper use of the people's money while he was sheriff." It is a well known fact that the sheriff does not hold or distribute the public's or people's money, but that all money coming into the sheriff's hands through writs, executions, etc., is distributed through it to those who represent the parties in interest in every case, except in matters of dispute when the money is distributed by the court.

As to the promise that I am alleged to have made that I would make certain affidavits. This is equally false. I did say to certain prominent Democrats that I could clearly and conscientiously make such affidavits, but that I questioned the propriety of doing so; that I considered it entirely unethical and unprecedented, and that I did not intend to do so in which conclusion the parties spoke to, concurred.

I will add, however, in this connection that it is notoriously known that the vote from a certain ward in Hanover was manipulated against certain Democratic candidates for congress in the past. This I vigorously and without reserve denounced and the men responsible for the same, and in consideration of my stand against such actions I am today harassed and vilified as well as opposed by parties guilty of former defeats.

Notwithstanding all vilifications I am energetically pursuing an aggressive campaign, true to the policies and principles of the Democratic party and the interests of the people, upon a platform against Cannonism, extravagance in the expenditure of the public moneys, trusts, and the high cost of living; and for the revision of the tariff downward, equal rights and government by the people.

Very truly yours,
ANDREW R. BRODBECK.

PETTY THIEVING BY WHOLE-SALE IN LOWER END.

Swimming Record—Broken Arm—Arrested Because Wanted in Baltimore.

Thieves made a wholesale raid on the farm in Berwick township on which Allen Sunday is tenant, on a recent night and carried off a lot of chickens, hams, shoulders and several bushels of apples and did not leave a single clue to their identity.

John Sachs of Gettysburg, while in camp at Dick's Dam, swam from the bridge to the breast of the dam and returned to starting point, in an hour and eleven minutes with one minute rest at dam and in this feat broke the previous record by two minutes.

Clinton Markel had his left arm broken near wrist while employed on farm of Henry Strine near White Hall. The arm was caught in the fly wheel of a gasoline engine.

Clarence J. Huff was recently arrested near Bonneauville by Deputy Sheriff George Fissel. The information leading to the arrest of Huff was received from Police Marshal Thomas F. Farnam, of Baltimore. Huff is alleged to have stolen $200 from a party whose name is not disclosed. He succeeded in evading the police for several months but was finally traced across the State line. When interviewed by the Deputy Sheriff, Huff offered no resistance. He merely said, "Well, I guess I am the man you are after but I know nothing about the charge."

W. C. Alwine and W. H. Carbaugh, the energetic brick manufacturers at Berlin Junction, have each fitted up their respective plants with means of fighting fires, should any occur. Pipes have been put down from the large ponds and a sufficient quantity of hose secured that any part of the yards or any of the buildings can be reached. It is so arranged that the water can be forced over any of the buildings by the large engines which are kept in operation to manufacture brick day and night.

William Rhoads of Harrisburg, received injuries by being jammed between an elevator and platform at the Pennsylvania Station last week. He was hurried to the hospital and found to have a broken leg and badly bruised neck and shoulders. He was married about a year ago to Nettie Trostle of Latimore township.

While Wm. Gross, tenant on the John Flemming farm, near New Oxford, along the York pike, was driving a fat hog, of good size, to town, the animal was run down by a large auto and so badly injured that it had to be killed, which was done immediately by bleeding, and thus the meat was not all rendered unfit for use.

A PICNIC was held at Latimore for benefit of Howard Fickel, whose wife and son had to be taken to hospital for treatment.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

One-Sided Cities.

If streets are one-sided, cities are, too. No one, as far as the present writer knows, has ever attempted to give an explanation of the fact that when a town sits astride a river that flows east and west, the north side has a monopoly of the best streets. It certainly is so in London, as it was in ancient Rome. Glasgow is another case in point. In Paris too, the north side of the river has distinctly the advantage of the south. As for New-castle-on-Tyne, its general attitude toward this overgrown and rather grimy quarter on the south bank of the Tyne is that of one who says, "Can any good thing come out of Gateshead?" Why should this be so? And why should the west end of every city you can find on the map be, from a social point of view, far removed from the east? Why is not Whitechapel Road Piccadilly? To the unprejudiced ear the names ring with equal music.—London Chronicle.

Unacquainted With Romance.

Being a poet, Tennyson was naturally opposed to the stern realism of the present day. "Scientific knowledge," said he, "is spreading, and is crushing all the romance out of children's lives. It was only yesterday," he continued, "I was walking in the fields with one of my nephews—a little chap of ten—when we came to one of those peculiar circles which the country people call 'fairy rings.' 'Look, I said; 'look here, my boy; here is a fairy ring.' 'A what, uncle?' he said. 'Why, a fairy ring!' The old folks would tell you that these fairy rings are so called because the fairies were dancing here last night.' 'Oh, uncle,' he replied, quite gravely, 'it is quite well known that these fairy rings, as you call them, are caused by a species of fungus.'"

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the machineless, tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van der Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c. at People's Drug Store.

JOHN WEAVER, JR. of New Oxford was injured in an auto on way to Hanover. The machine went over breaker with such force as to throw Mr. Weaver against top of concern, cutting his face severely.

A Reliable Medicine—Not a Narcotic

Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe, Mich., says Foley's Honey and Tar saved her little boy's life. She writes: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble and as the doctor's medicine did not cure him, I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar in which I have great faith. It cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time. Foley's Honey and Tar has many times saved us much trouble and we are never without it in the house." Sold at People's Drug Store.

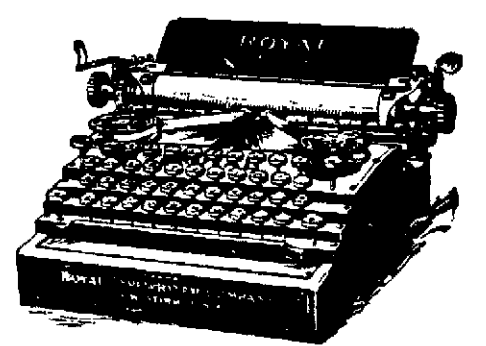

THE Gettysburg and Littlestown school boards will furnish the pupils of public schools with individual drinking cups.

JOS. I. WEAVER of New Oxford has sold his restaurant outfit to Maurice Starnier.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. Sold by People's Drug Store.

In this direction will be quickly appreciated, and the word will pass around among the tribes, until the wilder sorts come in and domesticate themselves.

My Clinton home is populous with not only robins and catbirds, but grosbeaks and indigo birds, and purple finches and tanagers, and of late wood thrush and the Wilson's thrush have come to nest close by my house—singing in the shrubbery, with those long, silvery, echoing notes that a few years ago were heard only from the distant forest.

The First Free School in America.

A very short distance from and plainly in view of the windows of the National Magazine office, 944 Dorchester Avenue, Boston, stands an ancient and long disused building, painted yellow, in front of which the city of Boston has erected a massive block of granite encasing a great bronze tablet with this inscription:

Town Meeting Square
Near This Site
The First Settlers of Dorchester Who Came on the Ship Mary and John June, 1630

Erected the First Meeting House Here They Held Their First Town Meeting and Established The First Free School in America

By Vote of the Town in 1639 It Became the First Free Public School Supported by A Direct Tax Upon the Citizens

Erected by the City of Boston June 5, 1909.

Here, then, if some lover of the free public school system of America wishes to make a pilgrimage to its very source, must he come with reverent head and heart, where amid the city streets the turf is still green, and tall trees burgeon and grow, where first of all the children were welcomed to an education at the cost of the taxpayers of the town.

It was nearly forty years later that the Colony of Massachusetts Bay ordained that the other towns in their jurisdiction should follow the example set by Dorchester in 1639—Charles Winslow Hall in "School Teaching as a Trade," in the "National Magazine" for September.

A Baby-Saving Campaign.

The Civic Federation pictures of Chicago with the startling headline "Don't Kill Your Baby," appeared on every possible blank space which afforded a smooth area twenty-eight by forty-two inches. From the street-car lines they could not be seen, except here and there along such routes as traversed "residence" streets, but the minute one left the car, the posters were much in evidence, and everywhere the language was suited carefully to the prevailing nationality of the neighborhood. The posters are hung from the walls of society meeting rooms in many parishes throughout the city, where the mothers who need the lesson most not only will see them, but will see them under the most impressive circumstances. Nearly every mother in the parishes, whose baby has been baptized within a year, receives a card bearing the "Civic Federation Babies," the warning, "A baby's life depends upon its food," a set of instructions on care and feeding of little babies, and a list of the baby tents and sanatoria.

To all appearances the campaign is "doing the work"; that is, it is stimulating a more general interest and reaching more people than have been reached before. But there is need of it. This summer has been the hardest for babies of any in recent years.

—Douglas Sutherland in "The World To-Day" for September.

Work as a Universal Panacea.

I consider work one of the greatest blessings. I am not sure but that it is the greatest blessing, says Erman 3. Kidgway in "The Delineator" for September. I must think it is, for I recall now that I wrote four injunctions in my boy's Birth Book, and work heads the list. Work keeps the body healthy, the mind steady. When the heart is sick—work. When hope is dim—work. After failures get up and work. Go at obstacles on the run. Tackle impossibilities hard. Measure to-day by last year, five years ago. If gaining, fire; work! If losing, too bad! work harder. Be glad that you have work to do. And if you haven't any definite work, find it quick, and get at it. If you have done your work, and earned leisure, and are not worn out, don't rust out. Travel, study; go in for community work; lend a hand; help somebody somewhere somehow. That is living.

It is the Plus Vitality that Counts.

Our judgments, our opinions, our actions in life are very much colored and affected by our bodily condition. Everything a dyspeptic thinks or does is necessarily affected by his condition. He cannot afford it any more than he can change the color of his eyes, says Orison Swett Marden in "Success Magazine."

It was never intended that human beings should be ailing, or sick; it was not intended that their efforts should be withdrawn from the world's service. There are hundreds of evidences in our construction that we were intended for happiness, enjoyment and usefulness. In short, that we were formed for health. Man was made for achievement; and to achieve great things one must feel that thrill of bounding health, that fullness of physical force, that buoyancy and exuberance of animal life which makes one exult in the mere joy of being alive.

The man who has such superb health that he always has a large amount of plus, a lot of the positive, the negative found in the weak, sickly man, ought to be a much larger producer than his weaker brother, because he is in a superior position to create. The inventive faculties, the springs of resourcefulness are much stronger in the man with a great physical surplus, with a large health reserve, than in the one who has no reserve. The man who is not up to the physical standard always labors at a great disadvantage. It is the plus vitality, the plus energy that counts.

Fashionable Tailored Suits for Aug.

"No ripple of fullness will be visible anywhere in the tailored suits for autumn," says Grace Margaret Gould in "Woman's Home Companion" for September. "Skirts will be short and very close cut. But Paris goes too far she becomes very far off when she advocates a skirt a yard and a half around. If the American woman wore a skimpy skirt of this sort, she would never be able to walk gracefully, and hopping is not exactly in her line. Paris makes a mistake when she dictates to American women the absurd."

However, all the new skirts will have the long, narrow effect. Even the sleeves of the tailored suits will carry out this idea. They will be long and plain and put in at the shoulder without any fullness whatever. And it is quite noticeable that as they near the wrist they will widen out a trifle just to emphasize the straight-line effect.

The twenty-four-inch-length coat will be more fashionable than the thirty-inch, and the twenty-six-inch and the twenty-eight-inch lengths will undoubtedly be the most popular of all. A number of the new short coats suggest the box coat of other seasons. Since the coat of the tailored suit is to be short, this brings into fashion again the very long separate coat which is here and here to stay throughout the fall and winter, for in dress, like many other things, variety is welcomed by the American woman.

The American.

He takes the Faiths of Other Lands. Faiths that so false and futile seem. And by the work of his own hands Makes real the thing they did but dream.

So now he keeps their fast or feast. As they, the dead men kept it then; But in the West and not the East, He looks for Christ to come again. —September "Sunset."

The Modern School House.

"Good Housekeeping" for September has a valuable article on the Modern School House, illustrated with commodious single story building with ton lighting and says during the past few years, a marked change in school conditions has taken place in various parts of the country. This applies to the schools in cities, towns and the country. The country school, particularly, has made great advancement. The tendency now is to make the district school the center of community interests. It is not only a place for the education of children, but for the improvement and pleasure of parents as well. This new movement is known as the public school extension. It is brought about by incorporating a library and an auditorium in the school house. The advantage of the farmer is obvious.

Crisis in Republican Party.

The Democratic magazine, "National Monthly," for September, has an editorial clearly indicating the crisis in the Republican party, saying "The Republican disaffection is a natural result of a policy of favoritism, privilege and patronage, which has grown yearly since Grover Cleveland left the White House, and which has reached its most dangerous climax in the Roosevelt-Taft administrations. Though trumpeting protests against corporate ravages, Theodore Roosevelt failed to check the advance; in fact, his administration fostered their efforts, as exemplified in the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company case, and again in his refusal to proceed against the Sugar Trust, although its stealings had been repeatedly brought to his attention. The action of President Taft, in accepting the Payne-Aldrich Tariff as the best tariff measure ever adopted by a Republican Congress, together with the administration's corporations and railroad recommendations are conclusive proof that the Republican party has not altered its policy, and revolt against it is not likely to be checked by throwing a few Jonahs overboard."

Greatest Living Master of the Piano

"The Musician" of Boston, for September, is a Leschetizky number in which Edwin Hughes tells the story of the life of one of the greatest living masters of pianoforte, Theodore Leschetizky, of Vienna, and who has taught more world famous pianists than any other master in the history of the piano art. In the interview with writer this master teacher compared the struggle nowadays for the acquisition of an enormous technique to the detraction of the proper amount of attention to the more musical qualities of pianoforte playing, with the rise and fall of the generation of chorists and predicts for it a like fate. He is of the opinion in 500 years; possibly 200 or 300 years piano playing will be a thing of the past. At present it is at the very height of its popularity. But there are two things which will keep it alive so long as this is at all possible. These are tone and rhythm. He who possesses these to marked degree can always be sure of his success with the public. September "Musician" contains 24 pages of music.

THE "PURE FOOD LAW" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a successful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

To Entertain a Bride.

There was busy times in a certain home in a certain well known town. The carpets were all taken up; the curtains taken down; and every piece of furniture was set out-side to air, and all the white clothes in the house were washed and ironed with care. At last this wholesale clean up was finally perfected. Chi-Namel, used on every floor, the morning light reflected. And when we came to learn the truth, they were expecting soon, an only son and his lovely bride, who were on their honeymoon. A house once varnished with Chi-Namel is varnished for a lifetime—Chi-Namel is elastic—never cracks nor loses its transparency or brilliancy—all because it is pure and adulterated varnish. All colors and all size packages. Sold by J. H. Collier.
